The throne of Christian England will not be adorned by a "banker" of crooked gambling games.

A BREAD tariff presses harder on the people, but is no more wrong than a clothing, carpets, glass, tin or lumber tariff.

A LARGE vote on to-morrow's charter amendment proposition would speak volumes concerning the intelligence of St. Louisans and their interest in the affairs of the city.

The British royal family is said to be preparing to take vigorous action to protect its members from libelous attacks in the newspapers. This is entirely proper, and the first thing to be done is to prevent its members from indulging in scandalous conduct.

The entries in the student-author contest of the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH assure the success of the plan and an interesting competition. The more the merrier, however, and no student should permit this opportunity to win fame and a valuable prize to pass neglected.

UNDER "Stories of Animals" the Globe-Democrat prints a picture entitled the "Gopher and the Cat." As the gopher is represented as a snake "walking about" the roof of a house our esteemed contemporary must have secured the editorial services of the Mayor for its animal department.

COMPTROLLER STEVENSON's plan for the establishment of a sinking fund through an amendment to the charter has been fully explained to the citizens of St. Louis. They should give it careful consideration, and after reaching an intelligent conclusion cast their votes accordingly. A proposition of this kind is worthy of a full vote.

Postmaster-General WANAMAKER is innocent of connection with the rascality of the Keystone Bank affair he will eagerly co-operate to secure a thorough investigation. He cannot afford to rest under the suspicion now attaching to him, unless the bringing out of all the facts involves something worse. Mr. WANAMAKER must stand or fall by his attitude with reference to the investigation should the truth be suppressed.

The estimate of the amount which the Government will have to pay sugar planters under the bounty law now goes as high as $15,000,000. The only difference, however, between the payment of this enormous amount of money, taken from the pockets of the people, to one class of producers and the profits they enjoyed under the tariff, is that one is a direct and the other an indirect tax. The people bear the burden of both.

THE total thefts of the Philadelphia treasury ring are now estimated at $1,500,000. Aside from the public money lost, the depositors of the looted Keystone Bank are out $2,000,000 and the depositors of the looted Spring Garden Bank $1,700,000. Twenty firms and corporations in Pennsylvania and New Jersey that have failed in consequence of this looting have liabilities exceeding their assets by $3,000,000. All this is the work of a machine operated on the "money in politics idea."

It is doubtless a shocking surprise to the Prince of Wales to discover that his presence in court and the high place he holds are not sufficient to restrain an English barrister from doing his duty in a case in which the Prince is involved, but it is the sort of lesson that he richly deserves. If he have any wisdom he will find in it a warning that the glamor of royalty is rapidly disappearing and its traditional influence is weakening among the people of Great Britain. It shows that the royal bugaboo is being recognized as a thing of shreds and patches by intelligent Englishmen and that the crown no longer protects a man from the judgment of his fellows.

A CABINET OFFICER IMPLICATED.

As investigation clears away the mystery of the Keystone Bank scandal, the shadow darkens about the good name of Postmaster-General WANAMAKER. We sincerely hope that he, too, will be cleared away.

It would be painful to see this pink of Philadelphia's business respectability relegated to the Quay rank for crookedness in money matters, or this bright and shining representative of fervent piety in the Cabinet turning out as unclean in politics as RAUM, TANNER, DUDLEY or the worst in the lot. His side of the story has not yet been told, and it should be heard before any man pronounces him guilty. But the stories of the other party concerned point straight to his inculpation, and he owes it to himself to tell as a voluntary witness all he knows about the matter.

There is a startling issue of veracity between Bank Examiner DREW and the Comptroller of the Currency in regard to the remarkable delay in the appointment of a receiver for the gutted bank which is suggestive of Cabinet influence. The demand of Defaulter BARDELEY's attorney that WANAMAKER shall tell what he knows, the startling statements the fugitive bank president is reported to have made about the Postmaster-General's share in a fraudulent issue of the looted bank's stock, and the charge that he used his power over independent railroads to cover up the damage done to the bank's lines, and among these the Rock Island and Northwestern, statements one coming on the 10th of the month and the other on the 15th, is a vigorous commentary upon the opposite sides of railway management. Not so many years ago the railroads of Chicago were taken over from the liquidation process in 1873, in years which have been going on between Chicago and the seaboard for the past ten years, and which have reduced the rates of the trunk lines about 50 per cent. The difference between the belief of the schools of St. Louis and the veracity concerning which many of the writers are informed, and that is the field that lies open to any writer of ability in the newspapers of to-day. Formerly those who sought to win fame and fortune by publishing houses or the magazines. It was in reference to this condition of affairs that the famous saying arose that literature was a good state, but a poor crutch. If conditions were such that the railroads could not do more to help the country which would be more patriotic and conducive to the dissipation of this feeling, than to exert our influence in every way to help the railroads pass the dangerous period. The pride and enthusiasm of the whole West is in it and it is destined to be a marvelous success as an American exhibit anyhow. Whatever comes from abroad will be by way of addition."

It is difficult to account for it, but everywhere I go I find that the failure of our Legislature to make an appropriation enhanced the character of something more than mere interest in the World's Fair, and rather a distinct sectional bitterness, though, perhaps, that was not strong. The Wedding of Gen. Schofield and Miss Kilbourne.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 8.—A dispatch from Keokuk, Ia., says: "A Society in this city is greatly excited on the approaching nuptials of Miss George Kilbourne, and Gen. John M. Schofield, Commander-in-Chief of the Army. While all the details of the wedding have not yet been formulated it has been determined that the wedding will be the occasion for an elaborate display of military pomp and ceremony. This step has been taken because of the recent bereavement in the family and is in accordance with Gen. Schofield's earnest desire that St. James' Episcopal Church will be the scene of the marriage ceremony, and high noon the hour. The officiating clergymen will be the Rev. E. C. McElroy, rector of the church, and members of his staff will appear in uniform, and the bride will be unattended bridesmaids. No invitations but verbal ones will be given, and announcement cards will be sent out on the day of the marriage. Of the bride's relatives who expect to be present from abroad are her sister, Mrs. Hiram Barney of New York, and her brother Wells of Cleveland. The wedding tour will be to the West and South."

A Real Wedding in Germany and a Mock One in Indiana.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., June 8.—At 5:30 yesterday morning, the hour corresponding with 2:30 p.m. in Hollenbach, Germany, a mock wedding took place at the residence of Henry Lang, a wealthy and influential German of this city and well known throughout Southern Indiana. The occasion was at the same hour and moment as the actual wedding of a girl in a wedding in his society, the contracting parties being relatives of Mr. Lang and his daughter Emma being first bridemaids. Miss Emma Martin and Mr. Gus Kuehnlein of this city represented the bride and groom. A city representative, the conclusion was that from Lang's vintage a case of wine was drunk which was the same kind imbibed at the real wedding.

She was on a tight-rope in a second-story window, the top of which was a pavilion in the center of the garden. A large crowd was present, and Madame, who came on to the rope from the window, had safely reached the pole where she lost her balance and fell, striking the pavilion. Her husband was also on the rope, but did not fall.

MRS. BETTS' MYSTERY

The Return of Her Daughter, Daisy Hudson, a Mighty Secret.

A RELATIVE FEARS THE REVELATION
OF THE MOTHER'S IDENTITY.

He First Denies That Adams That Daisy
Hudson's Mother Is Mrs. Charles F.
Bett's—How the Mother and Daughter Found Each Other After Years of Separation.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Bett's returned yesterday from Omaha with Daisy Hudson, the child who has been such a strange romance in the life of Mr. Bett's. They had got Daisy and her brother back home, but the paper knows it, because there are circumstances connected with their marriage that the world does not know and therefore the most strenuous efforts have been made to keep the public from knowing that Mrs. Hudson, the mother of this girl, is not Mrs. Bett's. At Omaha Mr. Bett's had reunited her with her mother, and the gentleman, who turned out to be R. A.
Bett's, was so much agitated that he fled the room, and the paper has the story, and said that, while the mother was very anxious to see her child, the newspaper, still, now that she was found, the mother was very anxious to see her child. His extreme anxiety and his knowledge of the mother's wishes did not comport with his denial that she was his brother's wife. He said, "Did your brother marry Mrs. Hudson?"
"No, not that I know of," was his strange answer.
